Fully impressed with the extreme caution required in forming conclusions concerning changes of structure taking place in parts of the body concealed, not only by the integuments, but by tendinous matter and fascia, and where the nature of the disease renders the opportunity of post mortem examination exceedingly rare, your com-mittee has been desirous to avoid that blameable haste in the decision of important questions which has too fre-quently given to plausible but ingenious methods of treatment a temporary reputation, to the abuse of public confidence and the injury of the profession, by granting to empiricism the weight and influence of great names.

any other apparatus known to the committee
